

Dr. Karoon Chanachai

Regional Animal Health Advisor

USAID Regional Development Mission for Asia

Thailand

Dr. Chanachai has worked for USAID Regional Development Mission for ASIA (USAID/RDMA) since 2020. After graduation from the Veterinary Science faculty, he started his career as a field veterinary officer at the Department of Livestock Development, Thailand. He subsequently moved to the central office to work as an epidemiologist leading animal disease surveillance, control, prevention, and workforce capacity-building programs. Dr. Chanachai enjoys working in partnership with a multi-disciplinary and multi-sectoral team to address public health threats. At the USAID/RDMA, he continues to focus on these aspects because he believes that society need a holistic approach to tackle complex public health challenges.
