

Dr. Qi Gao

Epidemiology Team Lead/Senior Epidemiologist

National Centre for Infectious Diseases

Singapore

Dr. Gao Qi is a senior epidemiologist who is currently involved in field epidemiology, outbreak investigations and management as well as other public health work related to the One Health approach. After completing medical training and a Master's in medicine, Dr. Gao pursued postgraduate study and received a Ph.D. degree from Yong Loo Lin School of Medicine, National University of Singapore, Singapore. Dr. Gao has contributed authorship to more than 40 peer-reviewed articles and successfully submitted more than 15 abstracts to local and international conferences. In addition, Dr. Gao served as invited reviewer for International Journal of Environmental Research and Public Health, Journal of Affective Disorders, Geriatrics and Diagnostics.