

Dr. Andre Furco

Technical Expert - One Health Approach

World Organisation for Animal Health, sub-regional representation for South-East Asia, Thailand

Dr. André Furco is a physician specialized in Infectious Diseases and Public Health. After having worked in academic hospitals, clinical research, academic teaching and for health development projects in Africa and North Africa, he lately worked for the French Ministry of Europe and Foreign affairs in the Global Health Policy Unit where his portfolio encompassed the Global Health Security and the One health approach. Dr. Furco has joined the sub-regional representation of the World Organization of Animal Health for South-East Asia in Bangkok, working as a Technical Expert on One Health within the One Health team. He is mainly involved in supporting the Southeast Asia region and the regional countries to strengthen their One Health Approach, along with the Quadripartite Alliance, partners and governments, especially thanks to various One Health tools and the One Health Joint Plan of Action.
